

ABSTRACT

A method for managing remote conferences including: receiving, via a device for managing conferences, data from a telephone conference bridge concerning the presence of participants in a conference, and determining the apparatuses of users to be included in a conference, by audio presence data and stored data identifying a user apparatus, in connection with the telephone number data.